Re Item V

Reasoned statement with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement

1 Reference is made to the following documents:

D1 US 2003/078652 A1 (SUTHERLAND FRASER W H [US]) 24 April 2003 (2003-04-24)

D2 US 2005/228486 A1 (CASE BRIAN C [US] ET AL) 13 October 2005 (2005-10-13)

D3 WO 2009/038761 A1 (ST JUDE MEDICAL [US]; LI XUEMEI [US]; WOO YI-REN [US]) 26 March 2009 (2009-03-26)

2 INDEPENDENT CLAIMS 1, 16, 33

2.1 The present application does not meet the criteria of PCT, because the subject-matter of claim 1 does not involve an inventive step in the sense of Article 33(3) PCT.

Document D1 is regarded as being the prior art closest to the subject-matter of claim 1. This said document shows the following features thereof (the references in parentheses apply to this document):

A prosthetic heart valve leaflet (paragraphs [0005] - [0015], [0070] - [0073]; figures 12, 13) comprising a fiber-reinforced structure (figure 13) including a plurality of fibers (figure 13), each fiber comprising a core fiber (124/138), the core fiber (124/138) having a curvilinear shape (figure 13).

2.1.1 The subject-matter of claim 1 therefore differs from this known document D1 in that:

- (i) The fibers are composite fibers having a sheathing fiber disposed about the core fiber.

The current application (see description at paragraph 4) and document D1 (paragraphs [0005] - [0015]) solve the same problem: How to provide a prosthetic valve that has a longer life duration. Therefore, the skilled person would consider both solutions as technically equivalent in order to solve the problem posed. This is why the objective technical problem that follows will only take into account the contribution of feature (i) over the prior art.

The problem to be solved by the present invention may therefore be regarded as: How to provide a reinforced fiber for a prosthetic heart valve leaflet that gives to said leaflet mechanical properties closer to a native leaflet.

2.1.2 The contribution of feature (i) over the prior art falls within the scope of customary practices for the one skilled in the art, see for example:

- either document D2 (paragraphs [0096] - [0104]; figures 3A,3B,4A-4D, 5E,5D).
- or document D3 (paragraphs [0019] - [0030]; figures 1-5).

The subject-matter of claim 1 is considered as obvious in view of document D1 alone. The solution proposed in claim 1 of the present application cannot be considered as involving an inventive step (Article 33(3) PCT).

The same reasoning applies mutatis mutandis to claims 16 and 33. Method claim 33 is only a straightforward way to manufacture the products of claims 1 and 16.

3 DEPENDENT CLAIMS 2-15, 17-32, 34, 35

Dependent claims 2-15, 17-32, 34, 35 do not contain any features which, in combination with the features of any claim to which they refer, meet the requirements of the PCT in respect of inventive step.

3.1 The subject-matter of claims 2-15, 17-32, 34, 35 falls within the scope of customary practices for the one skilled in the art, see for example:

- either document D2 (paragraphs [0096] - [0104]; figures 3A,3B,4A-4D, 5E,5D).
- or document D3 (paragraphs [0019] - [0030]; figures 1-5).

The subject-matter of said claims is considered as obvious and does not involve an inventive-step in view of document D1 alone.

Re Item VII

Certain defects in the international application

4 Independent claim 1 is not in the two-part form in accordance with Rule 6.3(b) PCT.

5 The features of the preamble of claim 1 are not provided with reference signs placed in parentheses (Rule 6.2(b) PCT).

- 6 Contrary to the requirements of Rule 5.1(a)(ii) PCT, the relevant background art disclosed in document D1 is not mentioned in the description, nor is this document identified therein.

Re Item VIII

Certain observations on the international application

- 7 Although claims 1 and 16 have been drafted as separate independent claims, they appear to relate effectively to the same subject-matter and differ from each other only with regard to the definition of the subject-matter for which protection is sought and/or in respect of the terminology used for the features of that subject-matter.

The aforementioned claims therefore lack conciseness and as such do not meet the requirements of Article 6 PCT.
