The invention as in claims 1-2 is not novel and does not involve an inventive step in the light of document 1 cited in the ISR.

Document 1 (paragraphs [0017]-[0025], fig. 2-6) discloses a telescopic clipping apparatus, having a main body configured as a telescopic structure using three tubes (20, 30, 40) with different diameters, a handle (22) provided on the tube (20) that is on the outermost side of the main body, a pressure contact part (50) provided on a tip of the tube (40) that is on the innermost side of the main body, and a detent (33) that fixes the length of the main body.

and the lock thereof could be inspected.

The invention as in claims 1 and 5 is not novel and does not involve an inventive step in the light of document 2 cited in the ISR.

Document 2 (paragraphs [0041]-[0053], fig. 1, 2) discloses a tool, having a main body (20) configured as a telescopic structure using a plurality of tubes (22) with different diameters, a handle (42) provided on the tube (52) that is on the outermost side of the main body, a pressure contact part (26) provided on a tip of the tube (58) that is on the innermost side of the main body, and an intermediate locking mechanism that fixes the length of the main body.

Using the tool disclosed in document 2, a luggage compartment door could be pressed, and the lock thereof could be inspected.

Judging from the size of the handle (22), the length from the rear end of the main body to the tip of the pressure contact part when in the shortest state as in fig. 2 of document 2 is 20 cm or less, and it is found, judging from the size of the handle (22), that the length from the rear end of the main body to the tip of the pressure contact part when in the longest state as in fig. 1 is 30 cm or greater.

The invention as in claims 3-4 is not disclosed in either of documents 1 and 2 cited in the ISR, and would not be obvious to a person skilled in the art, and therefore is novel and involves an inventive step.

In particular, none of the documents, including documents 1 and 2 cited in the ISR, discloses a luggage
