b. none of the figures is to be published with the abstract.

Box No. IV Text of the abstract (Continuation of item 5 of the first sheet)

An array of micro mirrors is used to beam steer a laser for Light Detection and Ranging (LiDAR) applications. The micro mirrors in the array are driven in a nonlinear motion to synchronize motion. The system comprises a spring, a combdrive actuator with stator and rotor fingers, a shaft, a limiter to limit a range of mirror motion. A method of using the array comprises steps of providing drive signals, determining oscillation of mirrors out of sync, altering the drive signal to change phase difference. The method comprises steps of identifying a steady state of operation and starting to rotate the system at an initial phase to operate at the steady state. The method comprises steps of moving mirrors having first and second steady states of operations and configuring the mirrors to have starting parameters to operate at the first steady state.
